God is In the Darkness: Finding Faith In Troubled Times Clarke K. Oler

Clarke K. Oler is an Episcopal priest and psychotherapist with a charming, unconventional approach to faith and healing. Having studied both the religious and the secular, he offers clarity and hope to people of all backgrounds and beliefs. Though his formal education includes graduating Yale University, St. John's University and Virginia Theological Seminary, his real education was his observations during his career with IBM and his experiences in World War II. As a communications specialist in the Burma campaign and in the civil unrest of post-war China, he learned that the struggle for peace is a continuing universal process.
