Every person has a leader within. True leadership is not limited to strong personalities. Each person influences others by their character, decision making, behavior, and words. True leadership is doing what is right regardless of peer pressure or a group's consensus. A person leads by either standing upon principle, or by persuading others. Both the introvert and the extrovert have a leader within. Whether someone leads through a support role, or manages people, everyday leadership emerges from a secure foundation. Once we are established in our Christian identity, leadership is the natural result.
