The story you are about to read portrays events in the lives of Susan Marie Cochran and Grover Cleveland Petty, two ordinary people whose life took some tragic turns. Their story begins in the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania and in the mountains of Tennessee during the early turbulent years of the 20th century in the midst of "moonshiners," labor strikes, and murder attempts. Their story is set against the World War I and World War II eras. The story is told through many of Susan's original poems, personal letters, and family pictures that will reach into the reader's heart and bring Susan's life into reality.
