Three Design Variations Anyone Can
Do From their Kitchen Table

By Monique Littlejohn

In this tutorial, I will teach you three wire wrapping variations that will turn your 'found objects' into pendants. You can use inexpensive craft wire; wire found at a hardware or electronics store; or sterling silver wire for these projects. Most likely, you already have the tools to get started. You do not need to have any experience in jewelry making or braiding. I take you step by step through the process, using full-color photos and descriptions. Just imagine how exciting it will be to give your hand-made jewelry as gifts or sell it in a craft fair.

I have been creating accessories and jewelry for over 20 years, and have found that this is the easiest wire wrapping design to date, that you can duplicate over and over again with similar results every time.

Each completed pendant can cost less than $1 to make, so you could recoup your investment in the book and materials in your first sale at a craft fair, on Etsy, or even Ebay.

Now, let's get started.
